Anyone is welcome to make a referral, including the young person themselves. Triage staff will discuss the young person’s difficulties with the referrer, the young person if possible, and other relevant people or professionals. The aim of these conversations is to obtain a comprehensive overview of the young person's mental state and risk. Once obtained, Triage will coordinate a response that may involve:- Urgent crisis support over the phone or in the young person's preferred location />- Arranging for a non-urgent mental health assessment with our Continuing Care Team- A referral to a more appropriate service

Our Acute Service Team is staffed by mental health clinicians and psychiatrists who are skilled in managing mental health crises. They can offer:- Phone support, face-to-face support and outreach within our catchment- An admission to our inpatient unit if required- A mental health assessment to determine whether the young person should be treated at Orygen Youth Health Clinical Program or elsewhere.
