Service Description

Jesuit Social Services Settlement Program works with eligible humanitarian entrants and migrants who have been in Australia less than five years. The program works with young people, their families and communities in settlement related casework support and referrals. The program also provides settlement information, advice and support in the form of workshops and group work. The program aims to build participant capacity, confidence and independence while supporting pathways and participation in education and employment. Programs include: casework, referrals, group work, workshops and courses. Programs are focused around assistance during settlement and cover a variety of topics such as education, health, employment readiness, leadership, independence and family relationships.
